

Anklets or Apache Leggings

(Made from Scratch – No Kit)

Because a Brave is not allowed to wear full leggings, (but will be able to upon advancing to Warrior) let me talk you through what options a Brave has available for leggings.

The first option is called anklets and as the name implies, only covers the ankle. They can be made of leather fringe cut to any desired length that does not create a safety hazard while dancing! They can be made of leather or yarn. They simply tie around the ankle but leave the lower leg completely exposed except for the knee bells.

Apache Leggings

(Made from Scratch – No Kit)

Apache Leggings unlike anklets are knee high leather leggings. Braves are allowed to wear them. The best pattern for Apache Leggings is a comfortable pair of Jeans. Use this pattern to create a pair from leather. Once you get the desired height (typically, just under the knee) add 3" to the top that can be folded over the outside and cover up whatever strap tied around the legging attaches it to the leg. This strap should go just under the knee and just above the calf muscle. It will tie in the back.
